Insightful guidance is the best way to describe Executive Senior Partner Felicia Hoang's approach to legal recruitment. An attorney by trade, Felicia opted out of life in a firm to pursue her passion for matching other attorneys with top firms in the Dallas/Houston market. As a native Texan, she has her finger on the pulse of both cities, bringing clients the highest qualified candidates the region has to offer. She is a graduate of the University of Houston and the South Texas College of Law.

By offering her insights and market experience, Felicia strives to provide a niche service for both clients and candidates that remains rare in legal recruiting. "I understand the way attorneys think," Felicia explains. "I understand the mentality of an attorney. I think we are all programmed to be able to withstand certain rigors to achieve success." Her skill at helping her candidates move forward in their careers by matching them with the right firm has resulted in hard-earned respect from some of the top firms in the Dallas/Houston market.

Felicia also feels confident in encouraging her candidates to consider the unconventional. "By understanding market trends, I can often help my clients see the value in exploring options they might not have considered otherwise." Felicia's keen observation of subtle market movements is an invaluable resource for guiding not only her clients, but the firms seeking placements.

More than anything else, Felicia strives to give 100% to her work. Recruiting is her passion, and pairing the right candidate with the proper firm provides a sense of accomplishment that inspires her every day. If insightful guidance with a keen eye for market trends is what you need, Felicia Hoang is the recruiter for your team.
